

An “Artist's impression' of how the basin might look...

February 2021

Don Upchurch painted 'this Artist's impression' of our basin and bridge in 2006 when the whole site was just a field with some remains of the aqueduct.

Sadly he didn't live to see any of the work that has been done, but you can see by the picture he had true vision of what it might look like including the lock going off to the right instead of straight on as it did in the past.

Sadly earlier this month his wife Terry also died.

They were a very dear couple who loved the canals and cruised a lot of the system in their Harborough Marine boat NB “Odmedod.”
